Machine gun drill was taken up last night by the personnel of Company M, the machine gun company of the third battalion of the 160th infantry, of the National guard stationed in Glendale. All of the guns allotted to this company were unpacked, thoroughly cleaned and assembled.

After the guns had been assembled and inspected the men were given instruction in range finding and sighting of a gun by Lieutenant Harold Alexander.

Notice was given to the non-commissioned officers of the company that they are to attend machine gun school at Arcadia on Thursday night. The men are to assemble at the Glendale armory at 7:30 and will be taken to Arcadia in automobiles. This school of instruction is of importance to the non-commissioned officers of the company. It is conducted by a regular army captain who is an expert range finder and machine gun officer. The theory of fire will be discussed and instruction given in locating an enemy battery, finding the range and map reading. Non-commissioned officers of the company are expected to attend this school together with any enlisted man who may desire.

VICTORIOUS LIFE CONFERENCE IS PROGRESSING

Good Results Are Seen in Meeting Under Messages of Speakers

The Victorious Life Conference, in session at the Presbyterian church, had a rich day yesterday. The attendance from elsewhere is growing, and the interest in the messages of the speakers is very deep.

Dr. Ramsey in the afternoon gave the second in his series of talks upon the epistle of Ephesians. His unfolding of the riches of that book is of wonderful breadth and depth, and constitutes a privilege to every one hearing it.

Following, and also again in the evening, Mr. McQuilkin spoke upon themes of the victorious life. All that he says is of such clearness and such soundness upon the foundation of the Bible that it carries most convincing weight. None should miss hearing these addresses.

Both speakers will be heard this afternoon and Dr. Ramsey tonight. There is special music at each service.

WARNING LIGHTS ARE ORDERED

A dangerous situation arose last night when a large pile of bricks and sand and a large motor box was left on Lexington near Pacific without any warning lights on. The matter was reported to the police by residents in that neighborhood and Officer Booth was detailed to take care of the situation.

"There are some contractors and private builders in this city," said a member of the police department this morning, "who do not realize the gravity of leaving dangerous features of this kind on the streets. In the event of an accident the party responsible for the obstruction being left on the road would be liable to heavy damages."

MYSTERY FOUR COMES TO LIGHT

The "Mystery Four" has been found. E. D. Hurd of 616 West Lexington drive, reported to the police yesterday that a new car was standing in the 600 block on Myrtle street. Upon investigation it was found that it was the Overland belonging to Mrs. J. Clark of 925 Beverly drive, which was stolen Tuesday night from in front of the T. D. & L. theatre. The auto has been restored to its owner.

THE WEATHER
Southern California: Tonight and Thursday, fair and warmer.
Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair tonight and Thursday with rising temperature.

There Is No Hate in God or Nature Reasons Mr. Foley

There is no hate in God or Nature. It was reserved for man to discover it and practice it. Where it exists it must be rooted out.

This is the conclusion reached by James W. Foley in his philosophical column, "The Listening Post," after a discussion in which he sets forth the fact that hate, envy, jealousy and bitterness react upon those who cherish them.

Henry James in his comments on the news of the day tells of the Texas man-killer who met a chief of police that was quicker on the draw than he and this recalls to Mr. James incidents of other men who were quick on the draw.

Editorials full of vigor, expressing real opinions, poetry, scientific facts, the splendid features of Della Stewart and John Pilgrim, eastern point of view, paragraphs and Dr. Frank Crane's able article are set forth for your consideration on the editorial page this evening.

TUESDAY CLUB GET FIRST PAYMENT ON LOT SALE

Check for $12,022.45 Received for Brand Property

Big jars of acacia bloom made a lovely floral setting for the concert by the Los Angeles Trio composed of May MacDonald, pianist; Calmon Luboviski, violinist, and Ilya Bronson, violin-cellist, which constituted the program of the Tuesday Afternoon club this week, and which was a real letter day in the pleasure it afforded an audience which filled the hall.

In their opening the artists made a change from their announced number, substituting for the Trio in D Minor (Mendelssohn-Bartholdy), two movements—Andante and Scherzo of a new work, a Brandts-Buys Trio which was most interesting and a worthy preparation for the compositions which followed:

First movement of Sonata in A Minor (Grieg) was then played by Miss Hope and Mr. Luboviski.

Violin solos, Nocturne No. 2 (Chopin), and Praeludium and Allegro (Paganini-Kreisler) were beautifully interpreted by Mr. Bronson, who yielded to prolonged applause and played Gayotte (Gosset).

The program climaxed in the lovely Trio in D Minor by Arensky, in which the pianist established in the minds of her hearers, her right to a place among great artists. The Allegro Moderato was a sympathetic introduction to the altogether delightful Scherzo-Allegro Molto, in which the piano part was wonderful, light and airy as a thistle-down. The serious third movement, Elegia-Adagio, began in stately, solemn beauty, warming to hope and cheer with lapses into more pensive melody that were very lovely and contrasted sharply with the animated finale—Allegro non Troppo.

All in all, it was a very satisfying program. In the business session which preceded the concert the president, Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, announced there would be no program on the fifth Tuesday in May, which falls on Memorial day.

60 TONS IS NET OF ALL RUBBISH CLEANED UP

Final Report Shows People Misunderstood About Garbage

A final report on the recent Clean-Up Week held in Glendale under the auspices of the city of Glendale and the chamber of commerce was made to the directors of the chamber yesterday at the weekly meeting and luncheon at that body.

Dr. Russell said that she had received a report from the city regarding the clean-up week and according to this report more than 30 truck loads of papers, broken glass, bottles and other rubbish not ordinarily hauled away by the city had been removed during the week. She said that according to the report by the city this rubbish had weighed approximately 60 tons.

Speaking as an individual Dr. Russell said that she would suggest that this clean-up week be made an annual affair.

FINANCING OF THE POWER PLANT IS STUDIED

Kitterman's Committee Is Unable to Report; Check Proposition

The matter of the Glendale people assisting in the financing of the location and plant of the Power Implement and Machine Works in Glendale is still pending. No definite action was taken at the meeting of the committee appointed Monday evening at the meeting of the chamber of commerce. The committee met yesterday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock in the office of R. F. Kitterman in the First National bank, and on account of the indefinite material with which it had to work it was unable to come to any conclusion. This committee, which consists of R. F. Kitterman, B. A. Mason, R. J. Hanna, City Manager, and Mrs. Ella Richardson, is anxious to have the industry locate here but wants to know that the money paid out by local people will be safe.

The status of the entire proposition stands as it did before the committee meeting. In the locating of the plant of the Power Implement and Machine company there discussion. One is in San Francisco, another at Modesto and a third at San Bernardino. The Modesto company is the one that has purchased land for its new home in South Glendale on the San Fernando road. The manager believes, according to facts brought out at the committee meeting yesterday afternoon, that if the people of Glendale will subscribe for stock to the extent of $10,000, he can persuade the managers of the San Francisco plant and the San Bernardino plant to join hands with his firm and by consolidating to form an organization that will be a wonderful asset to this city. However, nothing definite as to what the three firms will do in the way of consolidation was given to the committee and the people of Glendale, and it is this uncertain attitude on the part of the Power Implement and Machine Works that is keeping the committee from making a definite recommendation.

SPEED ON HI PLANS IS ORDER

Principal Moyse Instructed by Trustees to Assist Architects

BOARD REORGANIZES

Budget Demanded by June Starts Work Immediately

Members of the high school board of trustees combined business with pleasure and saved time for conference by meeting for dinner Tuesday evening in the school cafeteria, where a very nice meal was served to them. Principal Moyse, and officers of the school by Mrs. Effler, who has charge of the cafeteria under direction of Miss Ellen Hanson, head of the domestic science department. A good many matters were threshed out before it was time to take formal action in executive session following the dinner.

Capt. Thos. D. Watson, newly elected head of the board, presided over the meeting, before which Mr. Leggett appeared to request the cooperation of the board in the opening of the proposed new street which bounds the east side of the new high school campus. Mr. Leggett was told that when the board received a clear title to the property he had sold the district, and which is now in escrow, it would be glad to take the matter up with him.

Announcement was made of word received from County Superintendent Keppel that the school's budget for next year will have to be made up in June instead of July and August as heretofore, and the board made plans to carry out this instruction.

It being the day set for going over the returns of the high school bond election, the votes were canvassed and the official blanks filled out to be forwarded to the county counsel.

As the board is anxious to have the plans and specifications for high school buildings pushed as rapidly as possible, Principal Moyse was instructed to take time enough to assist the architects in every way in the hope that tentative plans might be ready for submission to the board by the time the proceeds of the bonds would be available.

Announcement was made of the annual convention of high school trustees, to be held in Los Angeles Saturday, and President Watson was asked to represent the board.

Principal Moyse reported that Miss Housh, head of the sewing and military department, wished to go to Paris to study along her special line during the summer and early fall, and had asked for an eight-week leave of absence at the beginning of the fall term. The board voted to grant the request.

Mr. Moyse also reported the receipt of a letter from Miss Aileen Renison, who is absent on leave studying music in New York, that

MEETS DEATH IN STEALING A FREE RIDE

William Spencer, 23, of Los Angeles and formerly of Salt Lake City, was instantly killed when he fell beneath a South Pacific train near the Glendale depot at about 10 o'clock last night.

HE IS DECAPITATED

Attempting to Enter Side Door of Box Car His Foot Slips

William Spencer, aged 23, of Los Angeles and formerly of Salt Lake City, was instantly killed when he fell beneath a South Pacific train near the Glendale depot at about 10 o'clock last night. Spencer was endeavoring to board the train when the accident happened. After grasping the handle he tried to get a footing on the step, but instead was swung between the cars and while in this position he let go, dropping beneath the wheels, one of the wheels passing over the back of his head, severing it completely.

H. M. Williams of 2432 South Wilson street, Alhambra, who was with Spencer at the time of the accident, caught the second car ahead of the one Spencer was trying to board. After gaining a firm footing on the step Williams looked back to see how his companion was faring, and just as he glanced backward he saw Spencer fall. Immediately Williams alighted and ran back to where Spencer's body was lying, when he found that the victim was badly cut up. Williams notified the Glendale police, who, upon the advice of the coroner, notified the L. G. Sovern Undertaking company, to whose establishment the remains were taken.

"I cannot account for the accident," said Williams when interviewed this morning by a Glendale Press reporter. "Spencer and I came from Alhambra to Glendale on the Pacific Electric. Our intention was to go up to Fresno and look for work, as we were unable to get a position down here. We left the Pacific Electric at the San Fernando road and walked back to the railroad and along it to the Glendale depot. There we waited for the freight we knew would pass there about 10 o'clock. It was moonlight and we thought we would have no trouble in catching it. As the train came along it slowed up for the tower at Brand boulevard and it was not going very fast when it got to the depot. Together we started to get aboard. I was about two cars ahead of Spencer. After I was safely on the step I looked back and saw Spencer fall. At first I thought he was only stunned, but upon examining closer I saw that he was badly hurt."

"My first thought was to get relief to Bill, so I ran back to Brand boulevard and caught an automobile up to the Glendale city hall, where I notified the police. Officers Booth, LaRock and Snyder hurried down there and found that Bill was dead. They notified the coroner, who instructed the officers to have the Sovern company take charge of the body." Although Spencer's home was in

C. OF C. HEARS OF TWO CONVENTIONS COMING HERE

County Sunday School and W. C. T. U. Meetings This Month

Glendale is rapidly taking its place among the "convention cities" of California. This is evidenced by the announcement made at the meeting of the chamber of commerce yesterday that the effect that two conventions are scheduled for this city during the month of May.

The first convention, scheduled for this month in Glendale is the Los Angeles Sunday school convention to be held in Glendale May 18 and 19, at which time all of the Protestant Sunday schools in the county will gather here.

The directors of the chamber of commerce were asked to aid in giving the Sunday school convention publicity throughout the county. On motion of Director Roy L. Kent, the secretary was instructed to write to all of the newspapers in the county informing them of the event and asking that notices of it be published. He was also instructed to incorporate in this item for the press of the Sunday schools to attend this convention and see Glendale.

VALLEY FOLKS TO HOLD SOCIAL EVENING

Monday Night to See All San Fernando Boulevard People Gathered

Monday night will be social night with the San Fernando Boulevard Improvement association. At that time this association will gather, with its friends, supporters and others, at the Yeoman hall, located on San Fernando road between Los Feliz road and Central avenue.

The intention of the association is to have one of those good old "get together" parties for which Glendale is noted. The early part of the evening will be taken up by an enjoyable literary and musical program. Mayor Robinson will perform vocally in his own original way and City Manager Reeves will "come through" with one of his rapid-fire, witty addresses.

After the program, refreshments will be served, and the remainder of the evening will be given over to social intercourse. The committee in charge of this event consists of Mrs. May P. Moberly, Roy Johnson, L. H. Wilson, William Griffin and Charles J. Griffin.

Peggy Proves to Be Deadliest of Her Own Sex

PARIS, May 10.—Another victim of the unrequited love of Peggy Hopkins Joyce, in the belief of the French police, lies in a critical condition in a hospital at Nice today. Lieutenant Rivas Muntt, an attaché of the Chilean legation at Paris, attempted suicide by swallowing an overdose of veronal last night. Clutched in his locked hands when he was found was a newspaper clipping containing Peggy's statement of her love for Billy Errazuriz, another Chilean youth, committed suicide at Paris ten days ago because Peggy jilted him, according to her story. An American army officer was reported to have killed himself on Peggy's account several years ago. Paris is greatly excited over the attempted suicide of Muntt. The general belief is that he, too, wished to die because of the unrequited love for the beautiful "siren of the century," as they now call Peggy.

BURBANK SENDS REAL ARTISTS TO GLENDAL

Choral Club and Soloists Surprise Audience With Wonderful Work

The Burbank Choral club came, sang—and was encored, even after the close of its last number, when normally audiences reach for wraps.

Not only encored, but compelled to repeat "O Italia, Italia," from "Lucresia," by Donizetti.

No higher compliment could be paid any choral society than the encores of a closing number.

Through a program that sparkled with artistry of exceptional merit, both in the selection of numbers and the presentation by the artists, the complimentary concert given last night at the high school auditorium for the Glendale Music club was a continuous procession of musical delight.

The first solo was that of Chas. Leroy Munro, who gave "I Am Thy Harp" (Woodman), and "The Torch of Goodwill" (Shelly) with fine voice and careful phrasing where phrasing was difficult.

The next was a wonderful rendition of the second Hungarian Rhapsodie (Liszt), by Mrs. Zephyr Algots Sparrow, whose technique, with firm, varied singing, touch, wove the varied themes with a distinctiveness of phrasing and restraint that is unusual to any but professional artists.

The Lyric Octet gave "Rose of My Heart" (Lohr), for an encore "Little Papoose" (Sherwood), in a manner that showed the confidence and spirit of the training that led to confidence of attack and delivery. The voices were each of particular musical quality.

As for the club, in its numbers it sang with the ensemble of a trained operatic organization, plus individuality and intelligence. Its male voices well matched the larger number of female voices.

Unfortunately, the size of the audience was not in keeping with the value of the program given. However, the comparatively small gathering was marked by keen musical appreciation.

No less distinctive than the numbers of the program was the ac-

"The time has come to fight for our rights," the minister cried, Carpenter said, "I am going to lay down my Bible and take up the gun."

The preacher then made up a company and led it to the hill, Carpenter said.

ZEPPELINS MUST BE PAID FOR

PARIS, May 10.—The council of ambassadors today announced its decision that Germany must compensate the United States for Zeppelins destroyed and not delivered in compliance with the treaty of Versailles. The council fixed the amount due the United States from Germany in this respect at approximately three million gold marks (about $750,000).

(The above cable apparently indicates that the council of ambassadors has decided the United States has suffered the loss of only one Zeppelin or smaller type airship of depleted value. The cost of a new Zeppelin would be considerably more than three million gold marks.)

This morning at roll call girls of Glendale high balloted on the amendment to the constitution of the Girls' league, proposed two weeks ago, which will serve to remove any barriers which would interfere with candidates for office in the student body, who failed of election there, from running for office in the league. The amendment carried unanimously. Following is the text of the amendment:

There'll be a big Chautauqua bee in Glendale pretty soon. The country's biggest spellers will be here; While business women soon will hold a picnic in the wilds, No more "love" tennis here in Glendale, dear.

The Sunday school and W. C. T. U. will soon arrive. To hold conventions here, and that's no lie; Twelve thousand bucks are pocketed by Tuesday club for lot, Hack says he'll down the challenger or die.

Mr. Goff is a newcomer in Glendale and is much enthused over the wonderful growth of the city. He is an old insurance man, having had 33 years' experience at various forms of insurance in the eastern states.

R. S. Ledger of Paso Robles is spending the greater part of this week in and around Glendale with Smith-Babcock-Hamilton, 204 East Broadway, who have the agency for River Glen acres near Paso Robles, the fastest growing almond district in the United States.

Smith-Babcock-Hamilton, who have recently taken on the agency for Paso Robles almond and fruit lands, have reported aggregate sales of $26,500 in the past two weeks. Not so bad for a start.

TUESDAY CLUB GET LOT PAYMENT

day, on which the program will be given by the drama section, has been changed to May 23, and because of the many guests from outside clubs, members were asked not to use their guest cards on that day.

A very interesting announcement concerned the first tangible evidence of the sale of the club's Brand boulevard lots, in the shape of a check for $12,022.45, first payment which the executive board had just received, the other payments being still in escrow.

Mrs. Hutchinson attempted no report of the recent state federation meeting, but, as she phrased it, touched some of the high spots. She mentioned the report of the state treasurer and her statement that more money will be needed to finance the organization the coming year and enable officers to visit individual clubs more, to explain their work. This led to a motion to raise the dues required of federated clubs from 15 cents per capita to 25 cents, which was strenuously opposed, but finally carried. The dues to the national federation are also to be increased, she stated.

In concluding her talk she referred to the community property bill passed two years ago, but held up by the opposition of the trust companies, who feared damage to their business through the withdrawal of trust funds should the law come into operation. Since that time, she stated, amendments have been made to make it more acceptable to its opponents, and the bill as amended to go before the coming legislature for ratification was read by the secretary, Mrs. John Dunn. Clubs have been asked to indorse it and Mrs. Hutchinson stated she would endeavor to have it published in the local papers and bring it before the club for action at a subsequent meeting, meantime desiring members to be thinking about it seriously.

Never before could you get so much tire worth for $10.90

AR-OWNERS who bought a 30x3 1/2 "Usco" for $10.90 last Fall have discovered this by now—

Nobody before ever got so much tire value in the neighborhood of ten dollars.

They never had to question the quality—with the makers of U. S. Royal Cords behind it.

They couldn't help admiring the price—spontaneously made to meet the new economy times.

A tire that would be high value at more than $10.90. At $10.90 it is unapproached.

At that time the new officers would be installed with impressive ceremonies, and more suggestions for club work and improvements would be received.

The hour was late when the balloting ceased and there was scant time for the consideration of the contents of the suggestion box. It was opened, however, and some very good ideas were presented which will be discussed at the picnic.

BOYS' ASSEMBLY HELD AT HIGH

Owen Emery Talks to Students on Rotary Club Boys' Week

A boys' assembly held at the high school this morning at 10 o'clock was addressed by Owen Emery, who set before the students the plans of the Glendale Rotary club for the observance of "boys' week."

The first event mentioned was a complimentary boys' matinee to be held Friday afternoon at the Glendale theatre, for which a very fine program, adapted to such an occasion, has been arranged by Manager William Howe, who is chairman of the entertainment committee. Saturday morning there will be a field meet on the grounds of Glendale high in which there will be 25 different athletic events, open to all boys of the city, those in the grammar schools as well as the high school students. Three prizes are being provided for each event, making 75 trophies in all.

All boys who desire to enter are requested to report to Mr. Hayhurst, athletic coach of the high school, at the boys' gymnasium, and secure from him the classifications, which will be based upon age and weight. Sunday will be "go to church" day. Mr. Emery told his audience that while no obligation rested upon them to participate in this "boys' week" program of the Rotary club, they were cordially invited to take it all in.

Dr. Jessie A. Russell of this city was the luncheon guest on Monday of Mrs. Clara Shortridge Foltz of Los Angeles.

You can light a room by burning a match—but not very satisfactorily. You can also "advertise" property through using placards—with about the same degree of satisfaction.

In these days of conservation of resources, add to your income by renting that extra room. A little classified ad will find a desirable tenant.

PYTHIAN SISTERS AT BIG MEETING

Five members of La Halla Temple, Pythian Sisters, this city, represented their temple at a big affair attended by about 250, given by Temple No. 73 in honor of the grand chief of the order, who made her official visit before attending the grand conclave. She was presented with a pearl necklace and a hand-carved gavel bearing her name.

Two candidates were initiated and at the close of work a banquet was served. The ladies who represented the Glendale temple were Mesdames Willets, St. Clair, Jollise, Dooze and Chrisman.

COMMUNITY SING BY METHODISTS

Competing musical events and uncertain weather cut down the customary good attendance on the community sing held at the First Methodist church Tuesday evening, led by Mrs. W. Q. Widows. Special quartet numbers, contributed by Messrs. Butterfield and another unnamed gentleman, and Mrs. C. D. Lusby and O. P. Lucas, were greatly appreciated and warmly applauded.

The balance of the program was given to the customary work. The next sing will be held in the same place two weeks hence.

RECIPES

BEETS WITH SOUR SAUCE
Two tablespoons cornstarch, two tablespoons sugar, one-fourth cup water, one-fourth cup vinegar. Mix cornstarch and sugar until well blended, stir this into the water and vinegar which has been heated to the boiling point. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce has boiled for ten minutes, keeping up the quantity if necessary. Pour this over hot, cooked young beets and serve at once.

ASPARAGUS PUDDING
One-fourth cup butter, four well-beaten eggs, one cup flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, little pepper, little milk, four dozen asparagus stalks, few tablespoons chopped chicken, veal or ham. Cream butter, add eggs alternately with flour which has been sifted with salt and pepper, and if necessary in order to make a good batter add a little milk. Stir in the asparagus cut in half-inch pieces and add the chopped meat. Steam in a well greased mold until the pudding is firm. Serve as an entrée with Hollandaise or any preferred sauce.

CHOCOLATE ICING
Two squares unsweetened chocolate, two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons hot water. Flavouring. Melt chocolate and mix with butter and water. Stir until well blended, add enough confectioner's sugar to make a smooth icing and flavor with a few drops of vanilla extract if desired.

Lost your pep? Drink Lime-Buck, at soda fountains.—Adv.

Fashions for Americans

The suit shown in the sketch is offered as a suggestion to the woman who is planning her late spring or early summer wardrobe, and who has a fondness for the suit of sports silk, linen or flannel. Except for southern resort wear, the first spring suit purchased by the average woman will be a more practical one of tricotine, chevrot or other wool fabric. The model shown would be very smart made either of a heavy sports silk or of flannel in white or color, or it would be good made of a heavy linen. The skirt is plain, and the coat, a slip-over, is slashed at either side and finished with embroidery in contrasting color, done on the upper part of the coat only.

There is every indication at the present time that the most popular type of suit for spring, that is for general wear, will be the well tailored model of tweed or chevrot. These suits are shown in innumerable colors and color blendings and the fabrics unquestionably give good service. The two-piece affair, that is coat and skirt, is much featured, and many that combine a sleeveless, low-necked, straight line, loosely belted dress with a smartly tailored coat of the same fabric are also shown. A tailored silk or cotton blouse or a sleeved guimpe may be worn with the dress, and a very practical outfit for either street or sports wear is the result of the combination.

Suit manufacturers and designers have had a troublesome time of it for many seasons. The one-piece dress long ago pushed the tailored suit out of first place for general wear, and no matter what they may do in the way of offering novelties and widely diversified lines, suit makers have not yet been able to regain for their products first place in milady's fancy. The sports or strictly tailored tweeds and chevrots and their clever little southern resort or warm weather models, such as the one sketched, are more nearly rivals of the one-piece dress than any that have been shown for some time.

Truths in Epigram

ETHICS OF THE JOB HOLDER

W. O. Watts, special agent of the department of justice, has been dismissed. The charge against him was that he had divulged information to certain congressmen. In seeking the information the congressmen had the laudable purpose of bringing to task certain war contractors whom they suspected of not having played fair with Uncle Sam. They had been urging prosecution of these alleged offenders. They seem to have acquired an array of facts, which, if not sufficient to convict, at least are of a nature to require explanation.

It transpires that Watts had in his possession precisely the information desired by the congressmen. He had been concerned over the delay in bringing action. He got the idea that the attorney general, as his superior, was being derelict to duty. Therefore he passed the information over the head of the attorney general, and soon things were popping. When the tumult subsided Watts was on the outside no longer privileged even to look in. Meanwhile the congressmen retain the information with which Watts was rash enough to oblige and are making the most of it.

Discipline is necessary in any organization. Watts violated the tenets making possible the maintenance of discipline. Probably he was upheld by conscience, and the certainty that he had a good purpose in view. Every man has to make his own interpretation of ethics, but he must expect to abide by the consequences.

AN UNWHOLESOME ALLIANCE

Lately the widow of an octogenarian has been seeking to get a part of his large estate. In this she was defeated, having accepted, it is said, a settlement that netted her $300 and a piano. The sordid episode recalls a marriage of the type that as a matter of public policy should be forbidden.

The husband in this case was senile. Before he managed to win a girl of 17 he had made frequent exhibitions of his mental weakness. There was no secret as to his quest for a child wife. He was reputed to have considerable money. He was lavish in promises. Finally one girl came forward and offered herself as a living sacrifice. If she had no parents to check her folly, the state ought to have interfered. Naturally she assumed that in the near future she would be a widow of means. This style of speculation is dangerous from every point of view. Of course the unnatural union was a wretchedness aged senility and juvenile silliness from the beginning. It could not last even for the brief spell allotted to the venerable groom. Soon the pair had separated, he to mumble to the end a sense of his wrongs, and she, happily, to drop from sight. Then he died and relatives scrambled for his estate. No divorce had been granted, the court declaring that either was entitled to relief. So the wife joined in the scramble, but did not get much out of it.

There is a lesson in all this, but senility is not likely to perceive it, and juvenility lacks wisdom.

THE INDIANA ELECTION

There has been a hasty jump to the conclusion that the victory of Beveridge in Indiana was due to a desire to rebuke the national administration. This jump was taken mostly by those who were eager for opportunity to make it. They ignore the fact that Indiana politicians have a habit of expressing personal likes and dislikes at the polls. New had been in public life long enough to build up a formidable collection of enemies. He had been the victim of untoward circumstances that had no relation to his public career unless to throw a cloud upon individual repute.

While New was out constantly on the line of fire, Beveridge had the benefit of seclusion that did not deprive him of publicity. He managed to have his name appear frequently in print. He had opinions that he was free to express, and that could not have been bearing on his future career except as they gave him a place in the mind of readers. When he left senate for private life he contrived astutely that life should not be too private.

Other senators who face election are said to be lying uneasy because of the ditching of the New time, but it does not appear that they have reason this. For example, Massachusetts is not Indiana. New is a long way from being Lodge.

A certain element in the senate already adopts Beveridge. He is privileged, with the consent of the gentlemen themselves, to stand with Borah, Reed, and La Follette. They are somewhat lonely and seek companionship. If Beveridge were in their group, he also would be likely to feel so. If his purpose is that of joining a truism, he has gone to much trouble for small gain.

SELECTING THE STUDENT

Whatever may be the practical rule of a college selection, and this is variously estimated, the value is to be greatly increased by the new methods. There was a time when the smaller institutions set no limit to the number of students. They needed all they could get. Some of them retained preparatory departments presenting a curriculum similar to that of a high school. The better type among these colleges, those that have won success and an admirable standing, have changed the system.

There now is an arbitrary number of admissions to the freshman year. The requirements are severe. They cover moral as well as mental qualifications. They seek to find if the applicant is sincere in the pursuit of an education, or if he seems likely to profit by a course. There no longer is a place for the dawdling student, for the one who attends college only because his parents desire it, or he thinks to spend four years in social enjoyment, unharmed by ambition to learn, and merely manage to "get by" in the classroom.

The student of the future will be earnest. The fact that he is permitted to be a student will attest this. The effect of the new order cannot be otherwise than beneficial. The teacher will have fine material upon which to work, and the results, in lifting the value of a college course, cannot be other than gratifying. Instructors no longer will have to contend with stupidity and carelessness, but can take fresh interest in their work, not being obligated to strive to "make a silk purse out of a sow's ear."

THE FOOL AND HIS MONEY

A bootlegger in New York now under arrest, says that by his illicit calling he has made $55,000 in twelve months. Of this money he had lost all but $900 in rolling dice. The last of his fortune he bet upon a losing horse. Still having an automobile left, he used it to go on a tire stealing excursion. Being pursued he drove so fast that he went over the curb and into an areaway, and that was the last of the machine. He was lifted from the wreck by the police and is in jail, with a charge of grand larceny against him.

Here was a perfect example of the fool and his money and their method of parting. But it was not in the parting alone that the folly of the man was made clear. There are schemes for piling up gains that nobody with really sound sense would undertake. Bootlegging is one of these. Many have tried it. Perhaps some of them, up to the present, deem themselves successful. This means only that their day of reckoning, surely on the way, has not arrived. They may be certain that it will arrive.

One difficulty under which the bootlegger labors is the circumstance that he has no friends. Even his patrons are aware that they cannot trust him. They believe that he would sell them deadly wood alcohol should the chance arise. They are aware that in connection with his business there is no shred of honesty. He gets his stock by some nefarious system, lies about its quality, and exacts a price that could have no relation to real value. So when he is caught, even the patrons do not care.

It is not probable that any fortune derived from bootlegging will be permanent. If the possessor does not throw it away as this one did, sooner or later it will be used in the effort to keep him out of jail, and the effort be likely to be futile at that.

THE NEUTRAL BABY

When we were at school we used to recite, with a considerable feeling that we ought to be terribly passionate about it, those lines of Walter Scott wherein he enquires if there breathes a man with soul so dead who never to himself has said: This is my own, my native land. And we exhorted the audience which gathered to hear our recitation in the high school auditorium on Friday afternoons, that if they found such a man, to go and mark him well.

We remember that we used to wonder just how he was to be marked, whether with a paint brush or a penknife.

The listeners were assured by the youthful elocutionist that for the aforementioned gentleman with the dead soul no minstrel raptures would ever swell, but that although he obtained riches, power and pelf he would forfeit all fair renown and, doubly dying, would go down to that earth from which he sprang, unwept, unhonored and unsung.

Since the late war things have been so shaken up, boundary lines have been so altered and nationalities have been so rattled about that it is going to be hard for some of these European patriots to tell just which land is their own.

A grown-up Austrian suddenly becomes a Czech, says Stephen Graham, a Hungarian who knows only Magyar becomes a Rumanian, a self-conscious Prussian is written into a Pole and their hearts are supposed to respond to new loyalties.

There might be some quasi rational nationalism found, if these people could be Europeans and acknowledge a loyalty to Europe as a whole. But every bloodthirsty patriot from Odessa to Dublin would denounce such an idea as horrible and un-human.

One gloomy gentleman from Upper Silesia, when he was asked at Ellis Island what his nationality was replied, "Plebiscite."

There are not a few people in Europe who are unable to tell just what their native land is until they have read the latest news in the morning paper.

Mr. Graham tells the following story, which he gives upon the authority of the British consul at Munich.

A baby was born on a ship at the time of the armistice. The ship was a German one which had been captured by the British. It had a British crew, but was bringing refugees from a port of Russia to the Baltic. It was flying the Neutrality flag. The ship was wrecked off the coast of Norway and was towed by a Danish boat into the harbor of Stavanger. The baby was born while the Danish boat lay in the harbor. The parents were Russian, but an attempt was made to get the British consul at Stavanger to register it as British. He refused. The English law is that the flag decides nationality and in this case the flag was neutral.

A neutral baby has therefore appeared on the scene. In a world that is unable to grasp humanity and can get no further than nationalism the question is whether such a baby is not born with a deal soul.

THE LISTENING POST

If I hate my brother I may harden him.
Drive him away.
Embitter him.
And I shall embitter and perhaps destroy my self.

Hate and envy and jealousy and all of the bitterness of the human being react upon self.
I might hate my enemy until the end of my time and my enemy might not know it.
But the accumulation of hatred would destroy me.

Embitter me and make me hard and sour.
Hatred should be reserved for things.
Evil things.
It is well to hate injustice.
Intolerance and bigotry and cruelty and unfairness.

It is well to hate them enough to fight them.
And if possible to destroy them.

Great men have never hated persons.
They have hated evil things.
For an evil thing is always evil.
But a man or woman may be cleansed of evil and become altogether lovable.

The Master of Men hated no man.
But he hated evil and unfriendliness and uncharitableness and intolerance and greed and all that.

And upon the cross He uttered words that brought forgiveness.
For those who crucified Him.

They speak sometimes of men as being good haters.
Good haters of other men.
Did you ever get a good look at a good hater?

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Under the Leaves—Albert Leighton (1829-1887)

Often I walked these woodland paths,
Without the blessed foreknowing
That underneath the withered leaves
The fairest buds were growing.

Today the south-wind sweeps away
The types of autumn's splendor,
And shows the sweet arbutus flowers—
Spring's children, pure and tender.

O prophet-flowers!—with lips of bloom,
Outvying in your beauty
The pearly tints of ocean shells—
Ye teach me faith and duty.

Walk life's dark days, ye seem to say,
With love's divine foreknowing
That where man sees but withered leaves,
God sees sweet flowers growing.

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

By HENRY JAMES

While Semenoff is said to be looking for a new war, he had not expected it to be between himself and Senator Borah.

Young Dodge, Detroit millionaire of the male flapper type, has been sentenced to work for a year. This conflicts with his constitution.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

IN COLLEGE FOR A PURPOSE

[Philadelphia Public Ledger]

Under the stress of competition the man who goes to college has learned that he must come away not merely esthetic or athletic, but actually useful. He must be able to put on the market a specialized ability that commands a price. Does this exclude a culture which is above and beyond the sordid dollar-mark? No; but it does mean that the student is fitting himself for life, and is not satisfied to scrape through periodic tests with a passing mark, shored by a tutor shrewd enough to guess the sort of questions that will be asked by the examiner.

The college man seeking to prepare himself for a career is aware, as he was not of old, that he will need all the training college can give him, and that as college is not a circus he is not a clown. An atmosphere of earnestness and purposeful effort is in evidence at the colleges which take a leading place in the scheme of American education. Student public opinion is co-operative and not militant when measures for the interest of all are put forward in faculty councils.

MOVING TOWARDS NORMAL

[Commerce Monthly]

The return to normal conditions is not an orderly process, and activity may shift unexpectedly from one point to another. The set-back in retail trade

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

Well, it's come at last. We've conquered the earth about and beneath us. We've dug deep into its vitals to supply ourselves with coal and iron and other minerals—jewels, too. We've learned to utilize its numberless resources of vegetable and animal life. We've found out how to chain its hidden electrical forces. We've brought about comparative safety on its waters and utilization of their force. We've sent ships up into the air about it. We can talk with those far distant by means of connecting wires.

But all this has not satisfied the more inventive of us. So we have invented the wireless. All we have to do for untold knowledge is to erect certain antennae on our house-tops and pick up all the messages that are flying about in the ether. [We hear scientific facts, weather reports (not always scientific), in exactness at least], concerts, world news, gossip. Is there to be no privacy hereafter? Must every secret be bruited from the house-tops?

It will not be long, if inventions increase, that lovers will not have any privacy, whatever, or criminals any chance to plan misdeeds. What with a possible spy-glass sweeping on us out of doors, a possible sly dictaphone recording each careless utterance, Edison's newest invention to intensify our whispers, that other contraption that records thought waves, life will not be worth living. As for going out into the open, where no concealed mechanism can get in its spying work, why the wireless'll get you if you don't watch out—and maybe, if you do! We shall all have to live open lives, openly arrived at.

But maybe that wouldn't be so unfortunate for us, after all.

is the direct consequence of two factors. Buying by farmers, long at a low level because of unprofitable prices for farm products, has not shown much improvement, as farmers have very little money, and their buying power cannot expand materially before autumn even if the current year's crops are good. They are wisely using their credit to buy fertilizer, tools and other necessities of their business. Buying by workers in cities has declined heavily—the cumulative effect of prolonged unemployment. It is not to be overlooked that when only necessities are being bought, buying does not concentrate so heavily at specific times, but is more likely to be fairly evenly distributed over a considerable period. Stocks in the hands of retailers and wholesalers are not heavy although they appear to be adequate in relation to the present buying ability and disposition of the public. It now seems likely that retail trade will continue at, not far from its present levels, or better until the normal midsummer dullness occurs. If gains in basic industries prove permanent the autumn offers promise of expanding retail operations on a stable basis.

ALWAYS WORK FOR THEM

Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall never be out of work.

CRUEL AND UNUSUAL

As a punishment for drunkenness an Omaha man was sentenced to empty 3200 bottles of beer without tasting a drop. Nebraska seems to retain a certain amount of fiendish, medieval cruelty.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Bud Ballew, known as a Texas man-killer, with half a dozen or so notches on his gun, met a chief of police last week. The chief was quicker on the draw, doubtless much to the surprise of Bud, who was shot so soon and often than his finish was instant. Such is the usual and normal end of the professional bad man.

Occasionally there arises necessity for an officer of the peace to kill on the spot some truculent enemy of good order. In such case the officer wins approbation. It was only in the west and south-west when those sections were both wild and wide open, that the notoriously "bad man" ever became invested with authority to enforce the law. His services were accepted as a last resort. Often when not shooting up lawbreakers, he was being shot up for breaking the law.

The late Bat Masterson, marshal of Dodge City in the days marked by the "petulant pop of the pistol," was an exception to the rule. Doubtless he had killed more men, acting always in an official capacity, than any other frontier officer. He never sought trouble, never ran from it, and never was charged with a killing that could have been avoided. On this personal side, he was a likable chap, mild as a May morning.

Wyatt Earp is about the only one of the old gun men who survives, and no longer moves in a sphere of danger. There was a time when he and his handy weapons wrought mightily down Arizona way. Whether always on the side of the law has been questioned, but even though Earp is aged now, nobody is likely to put the question to him.

How life hangs by a thread is illustrated frequently in the news columns.

Recently a man pulled his tobacco sack from his pocket. The slender puckering string, literally a thread, caught upon the mechanism of a revolver in the same pocket. The weapon was discharged and the man killed.

An excellent rule about carrying a pistol is not to do so.

The reported scheme for kidnaping the children of the mayor of Los Angeles probably will fail to impress the public deeply. The plan is ascribed as a sort of May greeting from the I. W. W. That gang would seem to be in bad enough to check any desire to get in worse.

A peculiar suit is that of an inmate of the poor farm against her husband who is said to be reasonably supplied with this world's goods.

After he has been made to divide with the wife, he should be sued by the county for the cost of her maintenance as a pauper. It is not considered good form for a husband with money to let his wife live at the poor farm, even though it happens that he doesn't care much about her.

Recently fire attacked a building in which ten phone girls were at work. They stayed until the smoke choked them, and then went out calmly, and were back in their places before the atmosphere was clear.

About the same time another telephone girl, observing the presence of a band of armed robbers sent a yell over the wire that scared the band into flight.

The telephone girl as a rule is quick and obliging, and has a lot of nerve. She has a pleasing voice, and to look at her does not savor of hardship.

The years come hurrying back at the sight of the name of Aimee Crocker once more in court reports. In trouble again, of course. It is a way she has of adding spice to life.

It seems that her secretary had sued for wages. She countered with the allegation that he had not been a secretary but a sweetheart, and no sweethearts ever were on her payroll.

Sze, Chinese minister to this country, mentions the fighting in China as an "inevitable incident." Most wars have tended to demonstrate the correctness of this view. A military conflict devoid of battle would seem odd.

Senator Borah keeps on the trail of Boris Gakhmeteff, and seems likely to catch either Boris or some ebony-hued pusson lurking in the woodpile.

The Russian came to this country as a representative of the Kerensky government. That fleeting creation vanished long ago. Nevertheless Boris remains, and apparently has all the privileges of an ambassador, and more money than most ambassadors.

It really is a little hard to understand.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

This morning I was completely flabbergasted. That is the only word for my state of mind—if it is a word. Flabbergasted.

To get at the story one must go back ten years. Jimmy Stone was then my nearest friend. Mrs. Stone was my wife's nearest friend. So it was natural that when Mrs. Stone became alarmed one night she should call for me.

"He says he is going to commit suicide," she cried, tears streaming down her face. "He has locked me out of his room."

I hammered my way in, and there was Jimmy, face on his hands, and a big old-fashioned revolver on the desk. He said that he had gone to pot mentally, physically and financially, and that the only way out was the one he had chosen. He presented an imposing array of facts to back his statement, too. Candidly, I had to admit that I wouldn't give a plugged dime for his future. But I had to make an effort.

"If you're not a rotten coward," I said, "you'll at least put this off until the end of the month. By that time you can get the odds and ends of your affairs straightened up so I can act intelligently as executor."

That argument went on all night and most of the next day before I won. By the end of the month he had a new job and a new hold on life. I wandered into his office in a big western town the other day, to find him keeping half a dozen stenographers with their noses on the keyboard, and perfectly happy.

"Let's see," said Jimmy, "how long is it since I saw you last? We'll have to celebrate."

And we did. And I found that this prosperous, happy, up-and-get-em man had actually forgotten about the night when he wanted to kill himself. Health and prosperity had erased it from his memory. It is as though it had never been.

"You're wrong," said Jimmy. "You've gotten me mixed with some other man. I've never been that sort of a fool."

DO YOU KNOW THAT?

EPISCOPAL PORCH NEW HOMES ARE REALTY BOARD IS AND GARDEN PARTY HELD STARTED AT EAGLE ROCK ORGANIZED AT EAGLE ROCK

Harry Nash Manages Benefit for Eagle Rock Church

Under the management of Harry Nash of the Episcopal church, a garden and porch party was held for the benefit of the church last Saturday afternoon and evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewellyn White, 920 Rock Glen avenue. Considering the threatening weather, there was a good attendance. Basket suppers were brought and hot coffee provided. In the evening all gathered within the house and joined in familiar songs and other entertainment.

Business Buildings Are Temporary Chairman and Secretary Appointed at First Meeting

Several new houses have been started within a week on the Dahlia Heights tract and the work on North Virginia and North Townsend avenues, which were cut through the tract, is going forward rapidly.

Mrs. J. L. Lauman, who recently bought the northeast corner of Virginia and Stanley avenues, adjoining the property of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Lawrence, is having an attractive house built which will contain five rooms for her own use and a three room and bath apartment for rental. While it is being constructed she is rooming in the home of Mrs. Clara S. Ellis, at 147 Townsend avenue.

Mrs. Elsie Walter and her sister Miss Meta Munz, formerly from the state of New York, who have been living in San Diego for the past year, have fallen in love with Eagle Rock and declare it is the place for all others to live. They have purchased a lot on Mt. Helena street, at the east end, and are arranging to have a house built on it.

The Eagle Rock Hardware company's building is showing up finely, with a forty-foot extension at the back and a second story added over all. Mr. Ritchey and his son-in-law, C. L. Suits, are planning a room for an up-to-date furniture store. Besides the usual hardware stock and household conveniences.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bransch, who sold their home on North Elwood drive to Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Thompson, are having another house built on the adjoining lot.

Among the many new arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cartwright, from Leavenworth, Kan. They have bought a lot on Rock Glen avenue and will at once have a house built upon it.

An attractive bungalow is being constructed on Ellis avenue by John Stewart, who was in the government Indian service in Arizona for 35 years.

F. W. Miller and wife of Eagle Rock are soon expecting visitors from Arkadelphia, Ark. They spend the summer with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. McNutt and her sister, Miss Nannie Miller, sisters of Mr. Miller.

CLEVELAND FOLKS AT EAGLE ROCK

Attracted to Eagle Rock by the booming of friends in their correspondence, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Henthorne and their little daughter have made the journey from Cleveland, O., to remain permanently. For the present they are living at 151 North Grandview avenue. Mr. Henthorne was a prominent electrician in Cleveland and will engage in the same business at Los Angeles in company with R. A. Parkinson, an ex-Cleveland and now a resident of Eagle Rock.

MISSOURIANS SETTLE

Dr. B. E. C. Slawson of Rolla, Mo., son of Dr. and Mrs. Slawson of 802 West Colorado boulevard, has come to Eagle Rock to make his home and is contemplating opening an office in Los Angeles.

PRESBRY'S OLD SUCCESS IN FILM HERE

"A Virginia Courtship" to be Seen at the Glendale Theatre

"Way down south in Dixie, in the days befo' the war," is the place and the period of "A Virginia Courtship," Realart picture in which May McAvoy will be seen at the Glendale theatre today and tomorrow.

"A Virginia Courtship" is the famous old play by Eugene Presbry, but it has been modernized and brought down to the twentieth century. Miss McAvoy, as Prudence, has opportunities for all the emotional powers of the stage. Her character is full range: first as a tomboy, a kind of a little white Topsy, running wild over the Virginia plantation, and later as a young woman, having her first and last romance with the nephew of her guardian, and being saved by him from a band of criminals into whose hands she has fallen.

Miss McAvoy is supported by Casson Ferguson, the young leading man recently seen with Betty Compton in "At the End of the World." Mr. Ferguson is seen as the young Southerner who comes home from agricultural college determined to introduce progressive ideas in Dixie.

S. P. VETERANS TO HOLD BANQUET IN BAY CITY

Celebrate Driving of Last Spike in Utah in 1869

"Old Timers" of the railroad work, whose experience have been closely woven with the history and development of the great west, were represented today at the annual reunion and banquet of the Southern Pacific veterans at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco. They are the men and women who have been retired on pensions by the company after long years of service. The date, May 10, is the anniversary of the driving of the "last spike" at Promontory Point, Utah, in 1869, which marked the completion of the first transcontinental railroad line, a red-letter day in the history of the Southern Pacific company.

The veterans were the guests of the Southern Pacific company. They came from all parts of the Pacific States and also from the lines in Texas and Louisiana, over fifty pensioners coming from points in the south in two special cars. Besides a program of entertainment, the old railroad men were addressed by Dr. David P. Barrows, president of the University of California; Col. J. P. Irish, Dr. J. L. Gordon, William H. Crocker, William Spross, president of the Southern Pacific company, and other officers of the company.

The company has pensioned 1775 employees to date, of which 834 are living, and has paid out $4,269,356 in pensions since the pension system was adopted in 1903.

A number of veterans present were in the service when the line from Sacramento to Promontory Point was being constructed by the Central Pacific, the parent company of the Southern Pacific. One of these is John Barrett who holds the record for longest service with the company, 56 years and 9 months. He started his service with the company as a "mule skinner" in a construction camp in 1865, and retired as a passenger conductor. Another was Joel O. Wilder, who started his service with the company in 1866 in the engineering department. His stories of how he was "spowed in" with only tea and corn meal left for "rations," and of the strikes of the Chinese laborers clearly indicate the difficulties encountered in the early days of railroading.

The invitation came from the Hollywood chamber, Assistant Secretary E. F. Sanders was appointed to represent the Glendale organization at the meeting.

The meeting will start at 10 a. m. today and will continue for the rest of the day. A luncheon and an automobile trip over a portion of the Caluenga pass are planned as features of the day.

In extending the invitation to the Glendale chamber to take part in the discussion tomorrow, the communication from the Hollywood organization said that the opening of such a road would be of material benefit to Glendale and the entire San Fernando valley, being a new route to the beaches of the south western section of the county.

service who were present were: William Hood, formerly chief engineer of the company, and internationally known for his construction achievements, 54 years and 1 month of service; Joseph B. Lauck, at one time Adjutant General of the State of California, who started his service with the railroad in 1867 as a depot watchman, and who served 53 years and 11 months; Charles H. A BAD BABY SPOILS HIS MOTHER'S PLANS

By JOHN BARTON
(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"A poor lone widow with five little children," is what the widow squirrel was saying. That was the matter with her this time. (Did you ever see such a creature for troubles?) And she hung her face out of the duck's nest-hole looking, oh, so meek and sorrowful and woe-begone.

Even Mammy Gay-wings began to feel a little bit ashamed of the recent ear-pulling. She didn't mean to give up, but she perched on the branch where Daddy Green-crest used to sit and sleeked her squirrel-clawed feathers while she tried to think. Folks always tell you it's wrong to fight. There might be a better way of getting her own tree back—though she couldn't quite see it. "It's very sad," she replied, in a softer note than she used to call names with. "Very. But they shouldn't be where they don't belong."

"Yurp!" piped Bobby Robin. (Of course he was there and of course he wished they'd go on fighting, 'cause he loves a row and hates a squirrel.) "Yurp! What's she doing with a family at all?" For a widow bird must leave her nest and let her eggs get cold. It's the proper thing if her babies are the pin-feather kind. One pair of wings can't be a feather blanket and go bug-hunting at the same time. They'd be either cold or hungry. So its kinder not to hatch them.

But the widow had an answer for that. "He ran away!" she sobbed. "He left me to raise them all by myself."

"But Chatter's—" Chips Beaver began. "Only nobody heard him. For Daddy Green-crest was spitting, 'one?' Infamous! The scoundrel!"

"But listen," Chips began again. "He had to go. I'm leaving my mate for the very same reason. Two big grown-ups can't stay in the same nest with a clutter of little ones. It's not good for the babies. That's the difference between furry-folk and flutter-wings." But he only mumbled it into Tad's hand-paw.

"Hush!" Tad warned. "Let them alone. The widow will manage them. They'll give her that tree—see if they don't. Isn't she smart?" If she could fool those soft-hearted ducks Tad would have a lovely joke on them. And he didn't want to spoil it.

She nearly did, too. Daddy Green-crest was bending his polite bow toward her and murmur-

She hung her face out of the Duck's nest-hole, looking, oh, so meek and sorrowful and woe-begone.

"Ma-a! Who's that funny-looking beast? Why don't he comb his hair? You fetch them for him." (He meant the crest ducks are always so proud of it.)

HOME CANNING

Home canning, preserving and the use of food will be the subjects taught in the short course which is to be opened at the University of California on May 22. Lectures and demonstrations on the most approved methods of canning fruits and vegetables in the home will be given in this short course which is being held especially for the housewives.

W. V. Cruess, associate professor of fruit products, will give lectures and demonstrations on why canned foods spoil, methods of preventing spoiling and on the principles and practices of the cold pack, pressure and lemon juice methods of canning.

The latest government and university publications on home canning will be distributed free of charge to those enrolled in the course. A nominal fee of $1 will be charged to cover cost of materials used during the course.

Listening in on Eve

HER THWARTED AMBITIONS

"I've just remembered, what I can do with that bathrobe of yours which you say, is so faded," said the energetic little wife briskly. "I'll dye it! My friend Petunia, Batwing dyes everything, with the most marvelous results. What color do you want it?"

"What difference does that make?" inquired the skeptical husband gloomily. "No matter what color I might desire that would be precisely the color you wouldn't get. Don't try it!"

"Maybe you think I can't do it, but I can," said the energetic little wife. "Petunia—"

"Shush!" interrupted the skeptical husband. "Didn't I meet Petunia's husband the other day looking pale and peaked, with a sort of scared glint in his eyes? I did, and the boy confided his troubles! He said he had stayed home for lunch the day before and Petunia announced that she would make some of those delicious creamed potatoes of which he was so fond, and it was a darkish day, and he was hungry, and all the while he was stewing away the stuff he was conscious that something was not what it should be. He helped carry out the dishes to the kitchen and happened to glance into the step-in which she had done the deed. The pan and the remnants therein clinging to the side were a lovely lavender in hue and when he rushed to the table for the rest of the potatoes they were the same."

"Petunia explained, after a horrified stare, that she remembered now that she had died some white silk hosiery purple in that 'very pan, and after a hasty washing had set it aside for a thorough scouring—which it did not get. She added that she was so upset and distracted that she could not remember what the manufacturers used in the making of purple dye but she was sure it was something very poisonous and he must take an antidote at once, only she hadn't the least idea what it would be."

"Batwing has been expecting to pass away ever since and well he might. He said the experience was not so far-reaching in its effects, however, as the time Petunia had dyed the bathroom rugs which were faded. She used the wash boiler and somebody called her to the telephone before she had repaired damages. And after the next wash day all the tablecloths and sheets, napkins, handkerchiefs, and towels were tinted a poisonous grass green, which was indeed

"I just bolted it in cream of tartar to fade it out white," said the energetic little wife, sulkily. "Only it didn't. How'd I know it would act that way? You can just wear your faded old bathrobe till kingdom come, for all of me, so there, now!"

RARE ORCHIDS ARE EIGHT DRESSES IS CHEAP IN BRAZIL WOMAN'S POSITIVE NEED, SAYS HE

Flower Market Is Filled With Exotics at Fifteen Cents Each

RIO DE JANEIRO, (By Mail).—Tropical Rio, city of orchids, soon will have a new municipal flower market, to replace the present antiquated structure in the gallery of Saint Francisco, the municipal perfect. Dr. Carlos Sampaio has announced.

The new market will be located in the Largo Caloca, near the center of the city and close to the Galeria Cruzeiro, the principal street car loop of the city. The building will be elliptical in shape constructed of concrete finished with white marble. Decorations will be in bronze. It is hoped that construction can be completed before the opening of the Centenary Exposition next September.

The perfect believes that the new market can be made to pay for itself through rent from stalls.

To appreciate the importance of the plan one must know the part flowers play in the national life of Brazil. It is safe to say they were "saying it with flowers" in Rio long before hustling florists in the United States ever originated the phrase. Brazilians send flowers on the slightest excuse or for no reason at all, just because they know it makes everybody happy.

The most beautiful and rare orchids can be purchased very cheaply—ten or fifteen cents each—as the forests covering the mountains around the city are literally filled with them. For two or three dollars one can buy an enormous gilded basket filled with orchids, ferns and other rare flowers.

An English merchant—John Crashe—cultivates orchids on an extensive scale and is said to have the finest orchid garden in the world at his home near Ipanema beach.

A MATTER OF CLIMATE
"What does that picture represent?" asked Mr. Watleigh.
"Venus rising from the sea," said the art dealer.

"Gosh! She hasn't any clothes on. I couldn't have a picture like that in my house. Show me a hunting scene."

"Here you are, Diana of the chase."
"She's not dressed, either. Better show me a picture of some Eskimo hunting seals."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Paul Poiret of Paris Mode
"Is Arbiter of Requirement"

PARIS, May 10.—The minimum number of dresses necessary to a woman of modest circumstances who wants to be well-dressed is eight, plus two mantles, has just decreed Paul Poiret, interviewed on the justice of men's complaints about the excessive number of dresses bought by their wives.

"Intelligent and prudent husbands," said Poiret, "must make the biggest sacrifices so that their wives be the best looking, the most beautifully dressed. I know some who pass up their cocktail to buy a bunch of violets. The wife is the last person to whom one should confess a difficult financial situation or ask economizing."

"Of course, this refers to a certain class in society and everything depends on the way of living and on the income of which one disposes. If your wife never goes out, she can very easily do with a single dress, even a home-dress. But this is not the general average."

"Therefore, I say that a husband who occasionally takes his wife out and wants her to be 'presentable' ought to let her have:

"One simple tailor-made dress.
"One elegant tailor-made dress.
"Two afternoon gowns.
"Two gowns for 'small' dinners.
"One dancing gown.
"One gala dress.
"One traveling mantle.
"One evening mantle.
"This is enough."

"TAKING NO CHANCES
"Well," said the happy bridegroom to the minister at the conclusion of the ceremony, "how much do I owe you?"

"Oh, I'll leave that to you," was the reply. "You can better estimate the value of the service rendered."

"Suppose we postpone settlement then—say for a year. By that time I shall know whether I ought to give you $100 or nothing."

"No, no," said the clergyman, who was a married man himself, "make it $5 now."—Boston Transcript.

MAGNETISM

Now we have talked about all branches of this radio business, but we have overlooked one important factor which is usually the first thing taught in a school. It really hasn't been overlooked, but I felt that it would be better to take it up later in this column as it is so liable to confuse the beginner who does not understand a thing about radio. Magnetism and electricity are manifestations of the same force, in different forms, as is readily evident by a few simple experiments. In fact, in the passage of a current, whether along the conductor or through the ether in the form of electro-magnetic waves, the two are always present. In other words, a flow of current always creates a magnetic field which surrounds the conductor. The lines of force of this field being at right angles to the direction of the current flow. Certain forms of iron ore are magnetic as they occur in nature. One variety is called magnetite and pieces of it are natural magnets. The first artificial magnets were employed in the earliest forms of the compass, which was about in the twelfth century. Pieces of this so-called magnetite will attract pieces of iron or steel and when they are rubbed on a piece of hard steel will cause it to become a permanent magnet. Artificial magnets are now made with the aid of the electric current, and they are many times more powerful than could be produced with the aid of lodestone, or natural magnet. By dipping a bar magnet into iron filings a regular mass of the filings will be found to cling to the end of the bar, the mass being greatest at the extremities and tapering toward the center, while at the center itself the filings are apparently not attracted at all. The ends of the magnet at which its strength is apparently concentrated, are termed the poles of the magnet, as a magnet when freely suspended will always assume an approximately due north and south position, the ends are termed north and south, respectively, or N and S, whether it is a horseshoe type, bar type, or whatever it may be. Such a suspended magnet is in effect a compass, and the plane in which it comes to rest is the magnetic meridian. For the earth is itself a great magnet with an S pole near the geographical north and the north pole near the geographical south. This accounts for the directive force of the earth when a magnet is free to rotate on its axis. Filings or scraps of iron or steel are equally attracted by either pole of the magnet, but if a piece of hard steel has been in contact with the magnet it will be found that thereafter there is no longer the same attraction regardless of the polarity. The piece of hard steel has become a magnet itself, with its own north and south poles. If the magnet then be suspended so as to move freely, it is found that if the two north poles are brought together, the suspended magnet will move away from the stationary one. If the north pole of the stationary magnet be presented to the south pole of the suspended magnet, they will attract each other and will adhere. This is known as the law of magnetic attraction and is expressed: Like poles repel and unlike poles attract. This is the principal on which the wattmeter operates except that instead of magnets there are employed certain electro-magnetic fields, the strength of which varies in accordance with the voltage and amperage flowing in the windings setting up these fields. It is also the principal employed in the direct current voltmeter and ammeter. A permanent magnet being used to create one magnetic field while the other is electro-magnetic and depends for its strength on the voltage or current. Iron and steel are the only common metals which are strongly magnetic. Nickel and cobalt are attracted by strong magnets, while bismuth, antimony and some other metals are repelled, though the repulsion is weak, so that until recently iron and steel were the only metals whose magnetic properties were sufficiently strong to make them of any value as magnets. Some alloys of non-magnetic materials, such as copper, manganese and aluminum, make comparatively strong magnets. These are known as Heusler alloys. They are composed of copper, manganese and aluminum in various proportions. The composition exhibiting the best magnetic properties is 14.3 per cent aluminum, 23.6 per cent manganese and 67.1 per cent copper.

NOTICE

The program in front of the Press building will be discontinued for the time being on account of the set being installed in the Press automobile. The Press radio equipped car is now travelling about the city and anyone seeing same who wishes to hear a little music at any time after noon, just hail the car and it will stop and you will be furnished with a free concert. Also you may ask questions and they will be answered as intelligently as possible.

WITH THE RADIO CLUB AND SCHOOL

Tonight's class is the theory class of which the program was published last night; however, the program is herewith published again for the benefit of those who failed to see it in Monday's paper:

1. Inductance.
 2. Inductance hook-ups.
 3. How to figure the natural wave length of the aerial.
 4. How to make proper connections.
 5. Oral review.
- Tomorrow night will be the code class for all wishing to attend until we are able to obtain quarters where we can have a fast code table and a slow code table, and also where we can have receivers and keys. The text books for the theory classes are progressing and we will each have a text book which we can follow and study. Once more let me impress it upon you to obtain a note book for notes on the theory class.

TUFTS COLLEGE FACULTY WILL REACH 35,000 BY RADIO

Tufts college, Mass., has the distinction of being the first wireless college in the world. Thirteen members of the faculty have volunteered to give lectures on their subjects and these lectures will reach 35,000 persons as far west as Wisconsin and as far east as Florida. Shown here, left to right, are Dr. Arthur I. Andrews, who will speak on "Changes in Europe"; Prof. Edward H. Rockwell, "The Story of the Bridge Builders"; Dean Gardner C. Anthony, "The Story of Engineering," and Prof. Albert H. Gilmer, "The Modern Drama."

PHUNNY STUFF

Say, can some one tell me how they are going to take up the collections for this Sunday church services via radio? Looks to me like some one is out of luck.

Radio sets will soon be a built-in feature in the new bungalow, so, real estate men, if you want to turn your property over fast, better install a radio built-in set.

Grown-up people are now going back to childhood days. Lady installs radio set in bedroom, puts phones on her head, gets under the covers and is lulled to sleep to the tune of "Wabash Blues." Next morning bugler blows reveille and maid gets up. Trouble with this is, they have patented a wireless machine which takes pictures via wireless. In that case we would have to be careful where we install the set, either that or we had better cover the set up at the proper time, for how would we know when they decide to take a picture? Might catch bright young dame and her young style plate on sofa in front parlor, playing Romeo and Juliet, or might catch Willie in the jam pot in the kitchen or dad sitting up with a sick friend. All those possibilities. And then again, what if you would wake up in the middle of the night and hear your dead mother-in-law's sweet voice. Looks like we better be careful than sorry.

HINTS

A certain gasoline filling station located on East Broadway have attached their aerial to a light pole, and evidently they do not take the Press; either that or they don't read the almighty radio page. For their benefit, it is again published that those who have their aerials attached on power poles might get busy and change them, for the Southern California Edison company has sure started hostilities. It will save you time and trouble if you make these changes now.

Going to Talk to Mars?

How many remember when the Mars propaganda was in full force about two years ago. Most everyone certainly remembers, so it won't be necessary to refreshen your memory. However, as it is not an altogether new subject to know that they are once more going to attempt communication, as Mars is supposed to be closer than ever before during June of this year. The exact date will be published, so all of you can tune your sets up.

Wouldn't It Be Great?

There were no street car wire and transmission line interference? Some of these broadcasting experts didn't put their mouths inside of the mouthpiece when they were talking?

Press Radio Car Entertains

The Press radio equipped car has proved quite a novel form of entertainment for the Glendallians and many of them are frank in admitting that it is quite uncanny to see an automobile drive up to the curbing, stick a horn out the side of the car and immediately hear a program from some of the nearby broadcasting stations. A concert was given Tuesday in the 100 block South Broadway, and another was given on the corner of Brand Blvd. and Broadway, which was enjoyed by more than 200 people inside of two hours. One man expressed himself of the belief that it was a fake until he actually saw that no one was concealed within and the basis of his belief was to the extent that an aerial must be at least 60 feet in the air to receive the wireless waves. This is not so as is proven by the radio equipped Press car, although if there was not three stages of amplification on the set in the car the signals would not be received so loud. The only aerial which is used, consists of one strand of bell wire which is strung in zig-zag fashion immediately under the canopy and over the bows supporting the canopy. The ground being used at present is whatever can be obtained, which is usually a water faucet. However, preparations are being made whereby it won't be necessary to even use a water faucet or even have a ground connection. Under the same process it is the radio editor's intention to perfect it so that signals may be received while on the run, without interference from the spark plugs in the engine. There are possibly a few radio experts in the city who will say that the radio editor is somewhat mentally unbalanced; however, that won't make any difference as these same experts voiced their opinions that the aerial which he constructed would not work, either. The radio car will be in and about the city for the next few weeks and anyone wishing a demonstration may have same by merely hailing the car wherever they may see it. At the same time, all the questions that may be asked will be answered if possible. This car is the same one that furnished the concert on the streets of Annandale and Tropico last Sunday and if you would like to hear it in your own neighborhood, all that is necessary is to call the Press office after noon and the car will drive to your place and serve you with a concert.

With the Radio School and Club

For the benefit of those present at Tuesday's theory class and who will attend tonight's class, please accept the apology of the instructor, if he seemed a bit groggy as I am sure you would be the same way under the circumstances. In the first place there was a concert being conducted at Burbank for the honor of the Father and Son's banquet in the First Presbyterian church on North Olive street and it was on my mind as I was very desirous that the concert be running smoothly. And next, I was minus my supper, which also worried me to a great extent. Starting next week, the two code classes will probably be combined into one class—that is, providing we can make the proper arrangements. Notification will be published in these columns in regard to same. Also I wish to announce that the proper kind of a buzzer has been obtained and the code classes will be served with a somewhat better code. The program for Saturday night's theory class will be published in this column tomorrow.

HACKENSCHMIDT ACCEPTS THORES' CHALLENGE

Wrestling Match May Be Arranged in This City

The challenge recently issued to John Hackenschmidt by Jim Thores to a wrestling match for the title of the Pacific coast has been accepted and representatives of the two grapplers will get together as soon as possible to arrange terms for the match.

It is possible that the match will be arranged for Glendale and if possible at the Elks' club. If this cannot be done the match will be held in Los Angeles.

Jim Thores is from Portland and is an ex-service man. He served during the war with the 363rd Infantry until he was wounded by a piece of shell. His wounds have not interfered, however, with his work on the mat.

Thores since receiving his discharge from the army has made his home in Portland, Ore., where he has wrestled several of the best men in the game today. Practically all of his matches have resulted in victories for him.

Gypsy King Arrested as Wife Deserter and Embezzler in Detroit

Even kings, it seems, are not above the law. Here is Pete Eli, recently crowned king of the gypsies in the United States, who was arrested in Detroit as a wife deserter. Eli, it is alleged, fled from Chicago with Polozkiva, widow of King Joe Eli, leaving behind his wife and seven children. Eli, it is also charged, took with him $20,000 belonging to the gypsy kingdom, although vested in the late King Joe.

PIG ON WHEELS IS NEW STUNT

MOUNT OLIVE, N. C., May 10.—Wheels take the place of feet for the two-legged pig of M. C. Barfield of this place. The animal, a red Duroc-Jersey, was born without hind legs or tail. The rest of it is normal, including its squeal. It was healthy from birth, and became a pet. Barfield, a veteran of the World War, has trained the animal to follow him about by using wheels in the place of the limbs nature forgot to give it. The animal weighs about 175 pounds.

'THE SHEIK'S WIFE' IS T. D. L. SHOW OF MANY STARS

Desert Wonders Are Shown in Series of Photographs

"The Sheik's Wife," shown at the T. D. & L. last night, is a production with a majority of stars and scenes taken in Arabia. There are few interiors compared to the vast number of desert scenes, the latter being the loveliest and most striking seen for many moons. The story begins as it should—at the beginning—that is, at the marriage of the Sheik to Estelle Graydon.

In addition to "The Sheik" last night's program at the T. D. & L., which will be repeated tonight and tomorrow night, included a side-splitting two-reel Hall Boys comedy, "The Dentist." There are screams and screams—this is the scream of screams. Then there is the news weekly and the "sketch-grams" and a wonderful scenic travelogue of color photography showing Arrowhead lake, which is generally known as Little Bear lake. Anyone who has paid a visit to Little Bear, which is located on the Rim o' the World in San Bernardino county, will recognize these pictures at a glance. This is one of the most beautiful scenic pictures thrown on the T. D. & L. screen for a long time.

Lived Three Years With Scissors in Body

For three years Mrs. Eva M. Shanahan, of Reading, Mass., lived with a pair of surgeon's scissors, six and a half inches long, in her body, according to court testimony in the suit of Dr. Clarence Crane against her husband. Dr. Crane asked $1,000 for removing the scissors. This was exorbitant, claimed Shanahan, who refused to pay it. Dr. Crane has sued him.

Glands and Nerves

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc. (Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.)

In confirmation of the growing belief, to which I have previously called attention, that disorders of the thyroid, pituitary, and other ductless glands play a significant part in many cases of nervous and mental disease, comes a most suggestive article in the Medical Record. The author of this article, Dr. Edith R. Spaulding, writes from a wide experience with the nervous and mentally disturbed.

And while she does not go to the extreme of those specialists who see gland affections at the root of all psycho-neurotic ailments, Dr. Spaulding insists that often it is necessary to take such ailments into account, and to apply glandular as well as psychological treatment if a cure is to be obtained. This even when the initial cause of trouble is demonstrably psychic rather than glandular.

For psychic stresses—worries, fears, jealousies, etc.—as experimentally demonstrated by Dr. W. B. Cannon and other investigators, have a profound effect on the workings of the ductless glands. If long continued, such stresses may themselves produce glandular weakness, with the result of intensifying the nervous or mental condition originally caused by psychic stress alone.

And on the other hand, as Dr. Spaulding sees it, when the initial cause is not psychic but glandular, treatment of a psychological character may be required as supplementary to glandular treatment. Under the influence of the gland disorders bad mental habits may have become established which only psychological treatment can correct.

This, clearly, is a most important explanation of the often reported inability to effect a cure in nervous and mental cases complicated by gland deficiencies. Whereas when the services of both the medical psychologist and the gland specialist are employed strikingly brilliant results in similar cases may be anticipated.

In proof whereof I might cite one of Dr. Spaulding's illustrative cases.

It is the case of a girl of fourteen, of marked nervous instability and most badly behaved. Not only did she give way to wild outbursts of rage, but she had on several occasions set fires imperiling the lives of other people. In addition she was subject to attacks of severe intestinal trouble that had necessitated taking her home from boarding school.

Psychological analysis showed that these attacks had, in part at least, a hysterical basis, and were not altogether unwelcome to the nervous, wayward girl. On the contrary, they constituted a device which she subconsciously utilized to enable her to get away from the school she hated and back to the mother she loved.

Discovery of this fact, however, did not help matters much. While at home there was little improvement in either her behavior or the intestinal disturbances. Finally careful medical study of her history, her general appearance and her various symptoms led to the suspicion that her great emotionality might have caused glandular inactivity, more particularly weakness of the pituitary gland.

"Elizabeth," says Dr. Spaulding, "was then given small doses of pituitary, with the result that for the first time in months her digestion returned to a normal condition. When this excuse was removed she was helped to see how much was to be gained by returning to school. "She then made a satisfactory adjustment at school for the first time. The glandular therapy is being continued with the same good results."

It is, of course, impossible to say in exactly what proportion of psycho-neurotic cases glandular and psychological treatment should be combined. The important thing is to appreciate that in some cases both kinds of treatment may be needed, and especially to reckon with possible gland trouble in cases strongly resistive to psychological treatment alone.

CHAUTAUQUA PROGRAM FOR THIS YEAR

Opie Read, Dr. Williams,
F. Ingram, Overseas
Quintet to Come

The Ellison-White Chautauqua, coming to Glendale May 25 for a seven-day stay, will offer to the people of this city one of the best and most varied programs that is being offered by a chautauqua circuit this season. From a glimpse at the advance literature for the seven days of the chautauqua in this city the following gleanings were made:

Opie Read, noted writer, wit, philosopher and platform sage is to discuss "Human Nature and Politics."

Dr. Elmer Lynn Williams, the "Fighting Parson" who spent eight years fighting to close the protected north side vice district in Chicago will tell how he did it.

Francis Ingram, former Metropolitan opera contralto will sing as will the Gilvan Opera singers. The Overseas Quintet, five talented young girls who have played in three continents are on the program and last but not least, Peter B. Kyne's play of plays, "Cappy Ricks" will show during the week.

BROADWAY WINS WILD FLOWER PRIZE

Competition Ends at the Library With Great Success

The four schools competing had very creditable displays. Broadway winning first prize on the greater variety and better specimens. Colorado street school in second place was a very good display and a close second in number of variety and beauty of display.

Intermediate had a display of unique flowers mounted on cards. Their display was very creditable, though being short of variety was against them.

The Columbus school exhibit was good and was classified. The judges in making their decision had to take several ballots, and none of them were unanimous. All of the schools competing should be proud of their work and try another year. It is an educational feature worthy of the cooperation of every school in Glendale.

The judges were: O. Spencer, president of the library board; Mrs. John Robert White, president of the Parent-Teacher association; L. T. Rowley, representing the schools.

KENNY SHOP IS ON THE ALERT

Kenny's Music Shop is "sending out" notwithstanding the rain, so big has been the demand for Columbia phonographs. Yesterday a customer called up and wanted a machine delivered at once, and Mr. Kenny had to do considerable sparring with the weather man before he could make the delivery. But Kenny always makes good and the machine was delivered within a few minutes after ordered. Just now the Kenny Music Shop is making some very attractive prices on Columbia and anyone needing a machine should investigate at once. Remember, also, the latest records have just arrived.

WOMAN'S CLUB IS TO BUILD IN TUJUNGA

Plans for Building to House Library Submitted by Members

TUJUNGA, May 10.—The Tujunga Woman's club is making extensive plans to raise sufficient funds to erect a building for a club house and to be used to house the library, which is at present located in Legion hall. Club members feel that the library is not adequately housed at the present time and are submitting plans for the proposed club house so that it may best accommodate its growing patronage.

In order to raise funds a series of food sales and teas has been planned, the food sales to be held on alternate Saturdays. Voluntary contributions from club members at the last meeting gave an excellent start to the fund, and it is hoped that the total necessary for the erection of a building may be raised in a short time.

Rainfall Record.
Rainfall for the past storm totaled 1.02 inches, according to J. P. Rockey, official weather recorder. Rain fell up to noon yesterday and in the afternoon there was a slight trace of snow or hail. Enough snow fell to cover the mountains for some time.

The record for total rainfall this season is 35.51 inches, leaving 49 inches to go to make the total of three feet predicted by Mr. Rockey for this year. The total to date for May last year was 1.35 inches, slightly more than the fall up to the present time, but the total for this season greatly exceeds last year's total of something over 22 inches. The record for the entire month of May last year was 8.39 inches.

According to Mr. Rockey this season's total for Los Angeles county has been greater than any since 1884, when 38.18 inches were registered. In 1890 the rainfall of $4.84 inches almost approached this year's record.

MANY SEEK MAY IN THE OPEN

Auto Parties Travel the Hills and Along the Shore

The lure of spring is taking many parties out of the city on wild flower trips these bright spring days. Among those reported to the Glendale Daily Press are:

A party of Glendale people motored up to Sulphur Springs, near Santa Paula, Sunday, taking with them a fine picnic lunch. They topped along the road to pick wild flowers and had a fine time. Those who enjoyed this picnic were Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Newcomb and son Howard Newcomb, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mariatt and baby Bobbie, Mrs. Story and son, Chester, Mrs. Celia Anderson, Miss Lenetta Booth, Mrs. Edith Gregg and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Booth. In going north they went via August and came home via Santa Susana pass.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Fairchild of 336 Boynton street returned Sunday from a motor trip of several days which took them to Carmel Highlands. They report that the scenery along the way was beautiful, the hills being covered with wild flowers and greenery.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Osborn, Jr., and family of 447 West Broadway moved into the San Gabriel Canyon Saturday afternoon, where they stayed and camped over Sunday. Here they found many wild flowers and saw many fishermen, but not many fish.

Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Bullock of 517 East Park avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Land of Huntington ark motored to Elizabeth lake, near Lancaster, on Sunday, cooking their dinner over an open camp fire. They report a splendid time and many beautiful wild flowers along the way.

PRIMARY ELECTIONS MAY BE COSTLY

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Candidates for the United States senate may spend unlimited sums of money in their campaigns in nominating primaries or in final elections next November, without filing statements of their campaign receipts and expenditures with the secretary of the senate, according to an opinion by Attorney General Clegg, made public today.

The attorney general held that the decision of the supreme court in the Newberry case had invalidated the provisions of the corrupt practices act, so far as concerns senatorial candidates.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE PLAN

I have to do a lot of things
That don't appeal to me,
I cannot always spread my wings
With soul and fancy free.
And in the world of me and you
It seems a wholesome plan,
To dream the things I'd like to do
And do the things I can.

Sometimes my lordly-fancy soars
To heights that are sublime,
But here are many humble chores
Of squire and prose and rhyme.
Some kindly bard's immortal height
I swear I'd like to be,
But I can dream it while I write
The simple things of me.

And what the sphere of you or place,
How dull and drab it seems,
There is no limit to the race
That you may run in dreams.
So in this world of you and me
I find it a good plan
To dream the thing I want to be
And be the thing I can.

The Once Over

MUSIC ON THE RAILROADS

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Nine thousand porters are to be trained in singing and assigned to quartets for duty in Pullman cars. It is announced by the Pullman company. The idea is to break the monotony of the longer trips. Entertainment, it is figured, will please travelers at all times, and be especially beneficial during delays, accidents and wrecks.

The later the train, the more singing. If the quartet "do their stuff" according to anticipations it is expected many patrons will insist that the engineer get the train three hours behind schedule instead of two.

Pullman music lovers even may become so captivated by an Al Johnson number they will request the train crew to back the train up and begin the trip all over again. You never can tell.

Conductor, as train pulls into Chicago: "Shee-cargo! Shee-cargo! (Observing that Pullman passenger whose ticket called for trip from New York to Chicago is not getting off. "Didn't you want to get off at Shee-cargo sir?" Passenger: "Yes, sir." Conductor: "This is 'Shee-cargo' sir." Passenger: "Well, I like the singing so well I'm going to stay on and ride through to San Francisco."

The country is so jazz crazy the introduction of music on railroads may make it actually difficult to get young people to leave the trains. Railroads may have to put dance floors in all cars.

People soon may be riding to the Pacific coast not so much for their health as for the music and new dance steps.

The railroad that has the best entertainment will get the business, regardless of scenic advantages or smoothness of roadbed.

Suggestion for railroad advertising jingle:
Here's Phoebe Snow about to go
Upon a trip to Buffalo;
For such a trip as this she longs
Because it is the Road of Songs.

The great danger is that the Pullman people will serve their songs in as small portions as they serve their food. If they do nobody will get enough music to do them any good.

On the other hand it may be the plan to make the singing so bad the customers will have to go to the dining cars to get away from it. Business is business.

There must be a catch in it somewhere. But the possibilities for development are extensive. A good colored comedian may have a brighter future with the Pullman company than with the Shuberts.

The introduction of South Sea Island and Hawaiian dancers in smoking cars is under consideration, it is understood. The main objection arises through a fear the men passengers will want to rent seats by the month.

Nothing has been done about entertaining the steerage classes in the day coaches, despite the fact they need it most.

An excuse will be given for renaming the Pullman coaches, anyway. Look for "Mammy," "Kentucky Blues," "Love's Sweet Kiss," "She's My Doll Baby," and other titles on the sides of the cars. Either the Pullman company will have to find names to fit the music or the song-writers will have to write songs to fit the Pullman cars.

Ultimately, even the train callers may say with music. "Tra-a-in Numbah 17 . . . Harmony Four Express . . . for Buffalo, Cleveland, Chicago and way-y stations . . . leaves on Irving Berlin track at ten minutes after you hear the "Dawgone Dixie Blue!" All-I abo-oa-a-r-d-d!"

Of course, the whole thing will lead to more trouble among the railroad workers. They'll want entertainment, too. Trained seals in the engine cab and caboose have been proposed, but the railroad workers are not allowed to throw fish to them under section 867 of the union rules as amended during the third before the last strike threat.

FIGHT AGAINST WAR GRAFT PROBE ON IN CONGRESS

Republican Leaders Seek to Block Resolution to Investigate

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Republican leaders in the house laid plans today for blocking passage of the pending resolution calling for an investigation of the conduct of the department of justice in war graft cases.

From a reliable source it was learned that Floor Leader Mondell and other party leaders, apparently working in close touch with the administration, have decided to do everything they can to stave off the investigation.

Taking at face value Attorney General Daugherty's statement that prosecutions in fraud cases are soon to be started, they will vigorously oppose any attempt to bring the resolution before the house for consideration, and if they fail in this they will try to marshal enough votes to kill the resolution when it comes to a vote.

An investigation, these leaders contend, would "reveal the hand" of the department of justice and lay bare many secrets which should be made known only in the courts.

Standing firm for the investigation, however, is a powerful group of republicans, many in the western states and practically every member on the democratic side of the house. They are united behind Representatives Woodruff, Michigan, and Johnson, South Dakota, republican authors of the joint resolution providing an investigation.

Woodruff and Johnson said today they have more than enough names on petitions to force the resolution to a vote and to secure its adoption.

Woodruff today characterized Daugherty's letter, transmitted to the house yesterday by President Harding, as "purely and simply an attempt to steer congress away from an investigation."

BRAND DEPARTMENT STORE TO OPEN MAY 15

Most of Fixtures Are in Place; Merchandise Is Arriving

Unless something unforeseen happens the opening of the Brand Department store, 233-5 North Brand boulevard, will be held during the week, beginning May 15th. Most of the fixtures for this store are now in place and the remainder will be located with the greatest possible speed. The stock of merchandise with which this store will be equipped is now arriving and the unpacking will take place just as soon as the shelves are ready to receive these goods.

This store will carry everything that one would naturally expect to find in a strictly up-to-the-minute dry goods store. Everything in dry goods will be handled.

Those who compose the company that will operate the Brand Department store are Samuel and Aaron Gershon, Leo Kanner and Louis Rosenfeld, all of whom come directly to Glendale from New York. Each of these men is an expert in his particular line, and each will have charge of some particular department in this store. This will assure the people of Glendale expert service and advice, regardless of the department of the store that is entered.

The room that houses the Brand Department store is 50 by 80 feet in size. It was constructed and arranged especially for this type of store. The front of the store is taken up by two large display windows, one on either side of the entrance. These will give ample space for an efficient display of the excellent class of merchandise that will be handled by this concern. In the rear of the entrance is an independent show case which will furnish additional space for show purposes. The floor of the entrance below the show windows is tiled, furnishing a very pleasing effect.

The general dry goods will be located at the sides of the room, while the women's and children's ready-to-wear room will be located at the rear. The store is equipped with an overhead basket and cash system. The fixtures are being put in this store by the Pacific Cabinet and Fixture company of which Robert P. McMullen and Harvey D. Van Huelklyn are proprietors, and are the best and most convenient made.

"We are coming to Glendale because we hear it is the fastest growing city in the country," said Mr. Kanner this morning. "It was while on a tour of this part of the state that we heard of Glendale. After looking the city over we decided that this was the place for us. After we have opened we would like the people of Glendale to call in and see us. We hope for a social call. We come to Glendale strangers, but we hope that before a great while we will know a great many people here. It is our aim in starting this store here to give the people of Glendale the very best value possible along the dry goods lines. We are here to stay and are going to do all we can to make Glendale grow. Every member of this firm is a New Yorker. We are bringing to Glendale New York ideas and New York money, but hereafter we are Glendale."

FAMINE STILL AMONG CHINESE

A special correspondent of the North China Daily News of Shanghai writes from Yunchow, Hunan:

Yesterday I returned from the city and district of Mayang, where I investigated the famine conditions. For months past the people have been eating roots, leaves and white clay. Many have died after eating the white clay. The situation is growing serious, and the death rates are becoming higher every day. Before giving some facts, let me tell you one cannot write down how it looks and how one feels to see so many dying and dead lying in the street.

On the highway I saw a woman and her three children lying, the woman and one child in a dying condition, as they had had nothing to eat for days. I could hardly stand the crying of these people, and gave them 5,300 cash. But she probably died, in spite of it.

A man came along with his wife, both hardly able to walk. The woman frequently fell on the highway. At last she could not go any farther, and dropped down, and he was standing beside her. I asked what was wrong. The answer was: "Nothing to eat; must die of starvation."

Here is another picture. A woman is sitting with her boy in a field. Her husband is lying beside her, and had just died there of starvation. Both will soon follow him. Here is a woman lying with her little one in the street. She was dead, and a few hours later the little one had gone, too.

There is a temple at Mayang, where you can get a girl as a slave or for a life of shame for nothing. You only write down that you will feed her, and she belongs to you. I have proof that some are being bought and sent down river. You can get a woman also for nothing. Boys are sold for a few hundred dollars.

This morning I was called to see a Christian woman who had been killed during the night by robbers. Robbers had been busy near the city gate and a bullet entered the head of this unfortunate woman. I heard then from her husband, also a Christian, that the woman had only once had a meal of rice during 20 days.

The streets are filled with begging children and women. They are mostly sleeping in the streets, and so become ill and die. Many are still holding out now, but as we have still about seven months to pass before the next harvest, they will not hold through. As far as we can see, in a month or two we shall see hundreds dying in a day, and there is no hope of help for them.

With the funds on hand we shall support some one thousand families throughout the entire famine period. To help with a few meals some ten thousand people who will ultimately starve and die will not accomplish anything, but only bring a little temporary relief, so we intend to support some and let the others starve. The worst is still to come, and I do not know if we can withstand it for seven months more.

THIRTEENTH IS LAST ACCIDENT

BIRMINGHAM, England, May 10.—His thirteenth accident proved fatal to Ernest Watson, traveling salesman. Watson's brother testified at the inquest that the dead man had had twelve accidents in the last few years. He had dreaded the thirteenth, fearing it would cause his death. He broke his leg. Though there was only a simple fracture, Watson's nervous system gave way, paralysis set in and he died.

Many a man puts both feet in it by trying to put his best foot forward.

Can You Sleep at Night?

One man was unable to fall asleep at night because he had invested the earnings of a lifetime in a speculative venture which threatened to go on the rocks.

Another used to awake with a start because he feared robbers might discover the hiding place of his savings, which he kept in his home.

A third worried all night because he had no reserve laid away to care for himself and his family should reverses or sickness come to them.

A Savings Account is a sure cure for these cases of insomnia. The man who owns one can rest the whole night through for he knows his money is absolutely safe, is earning him 4% interest compounded semi-annually, and is at his command should any necessity arise.
